

If this life was some test, as some religion claim it to be, we would have been given specific instructions at the beginning of our journey, and would have been told that we are going through a test.

My earliest memories did not contain any instructions, any prologues/monologues, any auditory/visual instructions - as to how to live this life and what the purpose of our lives is. And neither did yours.

We just randomly entered our present lives, of course as babies, but we did know why we are here. And we still don't know it. And we won't know it at the moment of death, or after death, supposing that there is existence afterwards. We might just start another existence after this existence, and exit this superconscious dream, not remembering anything prior, and not knowing anything further than 'the now'

Jesus Vs Muhammad: Spiritual Battles in the Afterlife

Islam and Christianity have been fighting each other in the physical and spiritual realm over the course of 1500 years in this physical world, and for an eternity in the afterworlds.

Muhammad and Jesus are not friends. They are bitter rivals of each other, in this world, in the preworlds, and in the afterworlds, physical or spiritual, it does not matter!

They lead battles against each other, resulting in physical and metaphysical devastation at both sides to be felt.

Now throw in Moses, the spiritual and physical leader of the Jews, in this world and the next.

These three are bitter rivals of each other. They are not friends as some people believe.

Now bring in Shiva/Vishnu/Brahma of Hindus. Fourth faction.

Buddha and his legion of followers comprise the fifth.

Zoroaster and Mani's faction make up the sixth.

Tao and Confucius lead the seventh, and they are not small in number, their legion. Perhaps they are as high in number as the Christians and Muslims.

Do not forget Zeus, Jupiter, Osiris, Odin, and the rest of the gods and their legions.

None of them are friends of each other. They are bitter rivals in the spiritual realms, just like in the physical ones.

These battles in spiritual realm of the afterlife are greater than The Epic of Mahabharata, The Trojan War, the exploits of Alexander, Genghis Khan, World Wars, and all the battles of human history in the physical world.

The difference you see in religions, their followers, their cultures, spiritual differences are all because of difference in the spiritual pre-world and the afterlife of the believers of various faiths.

Now Atheists prefer science and the physical world. For them, this is the extent of their existence. They may not have afterlives.

In the end, whatever you believe in, ends up being your realities and spiritualities.
